The foundation for the new Catholic Academy is nearing completion, and the structure will be pushed to the finish as fast as possible.

For calculating, plastering, whitewashing, and all sorts of jobs, go to the Special Committee of the City Council. Terms made known in secret session.

Prof. Mike Harris conducted the celebrated Fireman's Band on their excursion to the lake to-day. A large number attended them on the pleasant day's out.

Wells, Fargo & Co. to-day received forty-two bars of Ontario bullion, $29,501, one small silver bar, $140, and one Kentucky Mining Company gold bar, $6,000; total, $35,601.

The Mormons who put the United States flag at half-mast in Salt Lake City on the Fourth said they did it, but we do not believe that the Union will be destroyed or even fractured by their folly. —Denver News.

Five hundred and eleven Mormon immigrants arrived in Utah yesterday. Some of them got off the train at different points on the Union Pacific, quite a number stopped at Ogden, and the larger number came to this city. They are principally Scandinavians.

The special committee of the City Council that found Marshal Phillips guilty of patriotism and a loyal citizen of the Fourth, should now pass upon the case of Constable Crow. That "Put it up and see if you can't get hurt" utterance of an envious kid to a special vindication. Whitewash the crowd, gentlemen.

The annual re-union of the London Conference took place to-day at Fuller's Gardens. The committee, Messrs. Savage, Rowe, Taylor and some half dozen others made ample provisions for the hearty enjoyment of the large number present. Speeches, music, food and refreshment and a beautiful dinner was furnished by those present.

Why should a special session of the City Council be held and newspaper reporters be excluded? Are the proceedings of the city legislators public proceedings, or are they not the people entitled to them? But special policemen, special meetings and special proceedings on the Fourth, belong to the people, special to Salt Lake City.

An old lady got aboard of the north-bound Utah Central passenger train this morning to bid some friends good-bye, when unexpectedly the train started, and she rushed for the door to the platform and jumped square off when the cars were under considerable speed. She was tumbled head over heels and was considerably bruised, but was found to have broken no bones.

A telegram says that Augustus Daly's Fifth Avenue Theatre troupe, consisting of the finest talent in New York City, will pass through this city to-day by the Denver & Rio Grande, en route to San Francisco. The party consists of twenty-seven members, and after their engagement at the Hay they will probably stop off here on their return East. The D. & R. G. is becoming the favorite route with theatrical troupes visiting this section of the West.

Lead continues to rise in price, and has now reached $3.55 per 100 pounds New York. With the rise of each cent per pound the outlook for profitably working our great low-grade mines is more firmly assured; and if there should be a continued increase of price, until the rates of a few years ago are reached, we can expect a "boom" in our mining industries all through Utah and her sister Territories. We sincerely hope this will be realized, for in the successful operations of our mines lies the present and future greatness of the West.

ST. MARK'S HOSPITAL.

The First Beneficent Institution Erected in Salt Lake City.

A visit to St. Mark's Hospital, located on the corner of Third South and Fifth East streets, showed not only the abundance of the place, but proved a surprise to the DEMOCRAT reporter that an institution so skillfully and well arranged actually existed here.

This hospital was founded under the auspices of the Episcopal church, in the year 1872. Bishop Tuttle was made president of the institution, at that time the only hospital in Salt Lake, which position he held in a satisfactory manner ever since. Dr. J. F. Hamilton was appointed surgeon and medical director of the hospital in May, 1872, and has occupied such position with a true purpose to the requirements of the office, which he continues to fill, assisted by Dr. L. Hall. The board of directors consists of Bishop Tuttle, R. C. Chambers, John Lawrence, F. W. Billing, George A. Lowe, J. F. Hamilton and Rev. Mr. Armstrong.

The board hold their regular meetings, and make such provisions as are deemed necessary to the welfare of the institution, which insures a well-conducted hospital. The building is incorporated and owned by the board of trustees, who have from time to time added the comforts the place now enjoys.

At the present time there is in construction two more buildings, a dead room and wash house, which completes every necessity for all the wants now known. The reporter was forcibly impressed with the pure air and home-like appearance of the different wards and beautiful grounds surrounding the buildings. Fine lawns, flower beds, shade trees and walks tend to enliven the invalid's home and make comfortable all in attendance. The place possesses a cheerfulness which hundreds have availed themselves of when away from home and undergoing treatment for the various ills that life is subject to.

The steward and nurses, by virtue of their long experience, two of whom have been connected with the institution since its establishment, are necessarily efficient and well calculated to lend invaluable help. Mrs. Prout, the matron, and Mr. A. F. Kendall, steward, are most courteous and attentive to all the patients confined at their care, and many are the praises Mrs. Prout receives from the bed-ridden miner and invalid she has aided in restoring to former health. The construction of St. Mark's Hospital is considered among the best-planned throughout the country, though, of course, on a comparatively small scale. It is the cottage plan with each and every ward by itself, with a hall space of ten feet between the various rooms for ventilation and convenience. To this arrangement is largely due the low rate of mortality. The records show over fifty cases of capital operations during the past year with but one fatal result, that being a double amputation necessitated by a severe railroad injury. The antiseptic methods so carefully observed and the complete isolation and ventilation of rooms do away with the dread enemy, pyemia, or blood-poisoning, which is so prevalent in this country.

At the present time there are about thirty patients under treatment for different complaints, comprising lead and mercurial poisoning, acute inflammatory diseases, and surgical cases from a slight abrasion to amputations. All persons interested in the hospital and the patients confined are always made welcome by those in charge. Dr. Hamilton makes his morning call each day at about 10 o'clock and is always anxiously awaited by his numerous patients, who come from all over the Territory and from adjoining places.

CITY COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.
The Regular Business of the Session Last Evening.

At the close of the special session of the City Council last night, which exonerated Marshal Phillips and passed resolutions of respect for his conduct in lowering the flag to half mast on the Fourth, Mayor Sharp called the regular meeting to order.

R. A. Nelson presented a petition asking for a bridge across the city canal on the county road. Referred to Committee on Canals.

John Sutherland asked for a bridge and flume across the Salt Lake and Jordan canal, near Cottonwood. Referred to the Canal Committee.

J. L. Davis was granted an auctioneer's license.

W. H. Koehle stated that through mistake he had built a house on a lot adjoining one of his which belongs to the city. He desired to purchase the lot of city upon which his house now stands. Referred to committee on public grounds.

Binney & Schanell, O'Grady & McDonald, John Elliott, Harvey & Berryman and Tomney & Hillstead were granted retail liquor licenses.

S. G. Reed, news dealer near the D. & R. G. depot was allowed to carry on business free of license, on account of poor health.

The water works committee recommended that White & Sons be permitted to lay a water pipe from the city mains to their residences. Adopted.

Mrs. M. A. Burr was allowed $285.90 for feeding prisoners.

The City Auditor submitted his quarterly report ending May 31st, which showed the receipts to have been $32,063.37 and the disbursements $37,611.72. A balance of over $9,000 still remains on hand. Referred to Finance Committee.

Five hundred dollars was appropriated to the contingent fund of the City Marshal.

The amount of $68 was appropriated to pay an over-assessment and the interest on the Deseret Bank.

Meeting adjourned for one week.

THE BURNT-CORK ARTISTS.

An Immense Show By Barlow & Wilson's Minstrel Troupe.

Barlow & Wilson's Minstrels gave their first performance at the Theatre last evening to a good house, and the applause of the audience, if it did not quite bring down the house, must have shaken its foundation. The songs and choruses were rendered in a most pleasing strain, and the jokes of "tambo" and "bones" were new and free from the usual taint of vulgarity.

Thomas Eaines, tenor, in "Angel of My Dreams" was exceptionally fine. Milt. T. Barlow, in his specialty of "Uncle Remus," had all the traits and actions of the "ole fashion" plantation nig, and in his conception of the negro character leaves no room for improvement.

Geo. Wilson, in his funny specialties, is too comical for anything but laughter, and in his crazy patch suit, and graceful (?) manner of waiting, shows himself to particular advantage, and he well merits the title of the prince of oddities.

"The Fawn" (soprano) by W. D. Stoddard, and "Sailing" (baritone) by T. W. Walton, were better than the average, and the gentlemen were both heartily enjoyed. Mr. Eddie Fox, in his violin solos and imitations, was "immense."

Charley Goodyear in his "Absent Minded Man" showed himself to possess a good voice and long wind.

All the artists of the company are good in their immediate specialties, and as they will appear again to-night in an entire change of programme, we would advise all who wish to enjoy a hearty laugh and witness a good "nigger show" to go and see them.

KILLING OFF THE CURS.
The Hunt for the Untaxed Canines to Commence To-morrow.

Now that "dog days" are coming on, people owning dogs must either pay the taxes or take chances of having to pay, and having their dogs killed. Section one of the law relating to dogs says:

"Be it ordained by the City Council of Salt Lake City, that it shall not be lawful for any person to own or keep a dog within the limits of this city, without making application to the dog-tax collector for that purpose, and shall pay to said collector, for the benefit of the city, an annual tax of three dollars for each dog."

The recorder shall register the applicant's name and a description of the dog and give to said applicant a certificate of registry. Any person violating this section shall be liable to a fine in any sum not less than three nor more than ten dollars for each offence.

A DEMOCRAT reporter interviewed Mr. R. B. Williams, the dog-tax collector, to-day, and was given all the points in connection with the dog-tax. The dogs are not impounded, the owners being notified by the dog-tax collector or his assistants that the tax must be paid or the dogs killed by the owners, or by someone they employ to do the job.

Children owning some favorite "cur" are the hardest to deal with, and though the dog is worthless he is not the less beloved. Dogs are hid away by their child owners in garrets, cellars, outhouses, and every conceivable place to keep them away from the tax collector, and if the hiding place is discovered by him, tears and entreaties usually bring their parents to the necessity of paying the tax rather than have their children break their hearts over the loss of a dog.

The dog war will begin to-morrow, and the dog-tax collector and his assistants will make it lively for the canine population and their owners for the next few weeks.

DELICATE SURGICAL OPERATION.
The Left Half of the Upper Jaw to be Removed From a Little Girl.

To-morrow afternoon one of the most delicate and difficult surgical operations known to Salt Lake will be performed by Dr. J. M. Benedict, with several of the profession in attendance. The attempt will be to remove a naso-pharyngeal polypus from a little five-year-old girl of Mr. John Moss, who resides at Bountiful.

The operation will include the removal of the left half of the upper jaw, and possibly a portion of the side of the head. This terrible necessity is occasioned by a large growth in the back part of the throat and nose which will choke the little patient to death if relief is not immediately given. Whether the child survives the treatment or not, it is a shocking case to think of and a daring undertaking on the part of the surgeon.

Mining Matters in Ophir.
The DEMOCRAT had a pleasant call this morning from John Davis, of Davis Bros. & Stanton, owners of the January mine at Ophir. From him we learn that, with a few exceptions, the mines in that old camp are at a stand-still. The January mine, in which Mr. Davis is interested, shows a fine body of ore in two places on the vein, and as he and his partners have, after considerable labor and expense, completed the main wagon road from their mine to the main wagon road in the canyon, they will begin regular ore shipments by the first of the coming week.

The January is situated near the main divide between the Dry Canyon, and is in the vicinity of the "old time" bonanza of those camps. With a few energetic miners like Mr. Davis and his partners, Ophir will no doubt make a good record this season.

WITH BUT ONE EXCEPTION.

The City Council Approve of the Contemptible Work of Last Saturday.

Mayor Sharp called a special meeting of the City Council Monday night, which lasted two hours and resulted simply in the appointment of a committee to investigate the half-masting of the American flag on the Fourth by City Marshal Phillips. This committee consisted of Aldermen Patrick and Speers, Councilors Clark and Wells and City Treasurer O. F. Whitney. An adjournment was taken until 12:30 p. m. yesterday, when all the members of the City Council were present except Davis and Grant. The special investigating committee presented their report, which was read, amended, in forum and adopted, with but one dissenting voice, that of Mr. Jos. Jennings. The resolutions of respect to Marshal Phillips for his gallant action were passed and the matter dropped. Following is the patriotic report:

To the Honorable Mayor and Members of the City Council of Salt Lake City:

YOUR special committee appointed to investigate the cause of the excitement which prevailed in Salt Lake City on July 4, 1885, in consequence of the national flag at the City Hall having been hoisted at half-mast, and also for the reasons for the placing of the flag in that position, having duly considered the matter and heard the statements of the City Marshal and others in relation to the same, beg leave to make the following report:

It is well known there is a deep feeling in the midst of our community, and the raid that is being made upon the people because of their religious belief and practices. Several of our leading citizens are at the present time incarcerated in the penitentiary of this Territory; others have been indicted and some, feeling confident that they cannot receive fair treatment or justice in the Federal Courts, have absented themselves from their homes. There is a general feeling of gloom prevailing, and instead of the liberty they enjoy, it was felt to be a time of mourning. The City Marshal, confident of the existence of this feeling among the people, and without any disrespect to the flag, the nation or the day, concluded that he would be meeting the wishes of the people who elected him to his office by placing the flag at the City Hall at half-mast. We learn from his hand, and has been ever customary as a duty to his office, without consultation with the Mayor or City Council, to place the flag at such times and in such positions as he deemed proper. In accordance with this custom he acted independently in this instance. Four persons, who were not present at the celebration of Independence Day, the day of the shooting of President Garfield, had reached this city, the corporation and citizens, without distinction of class, placed the flag at half-mast, it being recognized as a day of mourning and not of rejoicing.

In the same spirit, and with the same feeling, the Marshal of this city, who had taken this into consideration, felt that in no better way could the prevailing sentiment be expressed than by displaying our country's flag at half-mast, signifying that, as when people weep and rejoice under the flag, so also when they mourn they mourn under the flag.

Some of the citizens have expressed their indignation at the action of the Marshal. Your committee, however, find that the intention of the Marshal was not one of disrespect for the flag, nor to offend the patriotic sentiment of any citizen, but was impolitic his reasons may have been in the eyes of some, he evidently had no design to offend anyone, but was moved by the feelings and sentiments of a great majority of the people. Notwithstanding these reasons, the action of the Marshal is misinterpreted and a wicked effort has been made to cause his act to appear as one of disrespect on the part of the city government. We regret this will be a stain on his motive. As to the action of the Marshal, there exists a difference of opinion. Some think it was proper, while others think it impolitic; but we must look to the motives which prompted the act, and upon investigation of them, we are satisfied, as already stated, that it was not wrong, and no disrespect to the flag. We are aware, however, that any conduct of our city officials can be assailed by a certain class in this city, and that any contact with the public is never permitted to pass without being seized upon and magnified to the disadvantage of our officers.

Consistent Jewels from the "Herald."
As to lowering to the half mast the flag at the City Hall, the act must be considered as a very grave blunder, and one which merits severe rebuke. The act was wrong, and we are glad to say we were aware of all classes of the community.—Salt Lake Herald, Sunday morning.

No significance can be attached to the act.—Salt Lake Herald, Tuesday morning.

If the fools and whisky patriots didn't have something to talk about they wouldn't have anything to say. Salt Lake Herald, To-day.

The above are editorial extracts from the Salt Lake Herald, dated as credited. They carry their own comment. What kind of a poor, miserable, apologetic and contemptible sheet is the Herald?

The doctor has arranged to have such information supplied in this way to save time. Receiving such printed matter the correspondent can describe his or her case fully and direct it to the doctor, in New York. Dr. Foote is successfully treating all forms of chronic diseases, a specialty to which he has devoted thirty years of study and practice. Evidence of his success can also be had by addressing Box 414, as above, but all letters of consultation and requests for remedies should be addressed to Dr. E. B. Foote, Sr., 120 Lexington Avenue, New York City, N. Y. Consultation free. An adverse report of Dr. Foote, Sr., in another place deserves attention.

AN INITIATION.

Starting Incident in a College Secret Society.

"The most successful initiation ceremony that I ever saw in a college secret society was one that was popular at an Ohio school until an accident happened. Then part of it was dropped. That part was a skeleton."

The speaker was a dealer in society regalia. He continued:

"We were initiating a sturdy young fellow who said he didn't believe in spirits or anything supernatural, and this is how we did it. He was stripped to the waist, one foot was bare and he was carefully blindfolded. Then we led him into the darkened lodge-room, where two guards grasped his arms firmly. As they led him slowly around the room one of them said, in a melancholy tone: 'My friend—for I can not yet call you brother—the journey of life is before you. Consider it. Life is what we make it, but trial must come, and sorrow and distress. Look well to your pathway.'"

"That injunction was rather aggravating to a man who was blindfolded and led by two strong companions who were guiding him to a short, smooth plank at an angle of forty-five degrees. 'Man rises suddenly in life,' said the guide, as the victim stumbled up the plank, 'and quickly drops into a pit-fall. He is lost. He indulges in a solo on the violin to a hassock placed on edge, which rolled away and let him sit down on the floor. 'He was picked up and led on as the guide said: 'The path may be smooth for a time, but obstructions are sure to be changes it, and then the victim stumbled lengthwise over a ladder supported three inches above the carpet, while his conductors moaned in unison. 'Even when in trouble himself he may be called upon to help a brother, and this he should do to the utmost,' said the guide, who helped himself to the victim's pocketbook. 'Last of all comes Death. He is terrifying at best, but should it be your fate to meet him alone show yourself a man, for a crown awaits you beyond.'"

The victim had been led through double doors, into the closet. The trine that held the hoodwork over his eyes was loosened. The doors closed noiselessly, and the guide and other officers of the lodge placed their eyes at the peep-holes.

For a moment the victim stood motionless, then the hoodwork dropped off. He rubbed his eyes with his hand, and then his jaw dropped. A blue light flamed in the skull of the skeleton before him, and poured out of the eyes and through the peculiarly marked teeth. They were opened half an inch. The air of the blue-lined closet seemed to wave and dance as the right arm of the skeleton was slowly raised until the fleshless hand rested upon the young man's shoulder. Then the melancholy voice said: 'I am thy fate.'"

"The victim drew his hand slowly across his forehead, and then over his eyes, and looked again at the skeleton more closely. Then he said: 'At last! I am dead!'"

"As I said, part of our ceremony had to be dropped. The victim was not frightened, he had recognized his father's skeleton."

"Do regular business secret societies use skeletons in their ceremonies?"

"Certainly. There are several orders that use them. We keep them in stock constantly. They are packed in half-length cases, made of pine or walnut, and are shipped by express all over the country."

"Some skeletons are plain with steel articulations; others have silver-plated articulations, where there is likely to be no strain the bones may be made of silver. Some of these high-priced skeletons are carefully polished and glisten in the light of the lodge-room. Fine cases go with high-priced goods."

"How high priced?"

"A fine skeleton, elegantly mounted, will cost as much as $50. One equally strong and able to stand the racket of the goat's attack may be had for $30."

"Makes business for the resurrectionists?"

"No, it does not. These skeletons are all imported, and are taken from the catacombs of the old country. There is no tariff to protect home industry in skeletons, and we can import them cheaper than we could dig them here. The domestic supply is very limited, and as an order is spreading or not, according to the price of the country, they are shipped to all parts of the country impartially, and are very effective in awing a fresh candidate for light and instruction."

—New York Sun.

"And you have received a divorce from that vagabond husband of yours?" said Mrs. Smith.

"Yes, I am glad to say that I have."

"Didn't you feel quite overpowered when you heard the decision of the Judge?"

"Not exactly; I felt sort of unmanned, so to speak."
